AECOM to participate in Ethisphere Institute's "Ethics Drives Performance" conference

LOS ANGELES (Sept. 27, 2011) — AECOM Technology Corporation (NYSE: ACM), a leading provider of professional technical and management support services for government and commercial clients around the world, will participate in the Ethisphere Institute's "Ethics Drives Performance" conference tomorrow in New York City, hosted by NYSE Euronext.

The conference, held at the New York Stock Exchange, features leaders from Ethisphere's 2011 World's Most Ethical Companies, who will share insights and best practices for prioritizing ethics to achieve business growth. John M. Dionisio, AECOM president and chief executive officer, will participate in the conference's opening panel, "Traits of an Ethical Leader: Keys to Establishing a Strong Tone from the Top and Ethical Culture Within a Global Organization."

Dionisio also will be on the podium, along with other representatives of select NYSE-listed 2011 World's Most Ethical Companies, as the Ethisphere Institute rings The Opening Bell at the New York Stock Exchange.

"We are pleased to have earned the designation as a World's Most Ethical Company and to share our belief that operating ethically and with integrity is not only the right thing to do, it's also good for business," said Dionisio. "Our participation at this conference is just one of the activities we are engaging in as part of AECOM's Ethics Week, which features a series of events across our global operations that will reinforce our commitment to ethics and integrity."
