AECOM appoints John M. Renfro as executive vice president, chief human resources officer

LOS ANGELES (March 5, 2012) — AECOM Technology Corporation (NYSE: ACM), a leading provider of professional technical and management support services for public and private clients in more than 130 countries around the world, announced today that it has appointed John M. Renfro as executive vice president and chief human resources officer. In this role, Renfro leads the company's worldwide human resources (HR) organization and is responsible for driving its global human capital strategy across the 45,000-employee enterprise.

Prior to joining AECOM, Renfro served as vice president of human resources for Hewlett-Packard Company (HP). Before HP, he was the senior vice president and chief human resources officer for The Walt Disney Company. His 30-year career also includes chief human resources officer with Gateway, Inc., and chief human resources and administrative officer with Zenith Electronics.

"John's extensive experience developing and implementing innovative human resources strategies for leading global companies will be invaluable as AECOM further advances the people pillar of our business strategy," said John M. Dionisio, AECOM chairman and chief executive officer. "As we remain focused on delivering the best possible service to our clients, we are delighted to have John's strategic knowledge and passion as we continue to grow our business."

Renfro will be based at AECOM's headquarters in Los Angeles.
