AECOM awarded design contract for final leg of Edmonton ring road

- Contract is part of public-private partnership to deliver highway project

LOS ANGELES (Sept. 5, 2012) — AECOM Technology Corporation (NYSE: ACM), a leading provider of professional technical and management support services for government and commercial clients around the world, announced today that it was awarded a design contract for the final leg of Anthony Henday Drive in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

The Alberta government signed a 34-year public-private partnership (P3) contract with the Capital City Link General Partnership to design, build, operate and partially finance the highway project. The P3 contract is worth US$1.8 billion.

AECOM is the lead designer for the Flatiron-Dragados-Aecon-Lafarge design-build joint venture company. The project includes 17 miles of six- and eight-lane divided roadways, nine interchanges, two road flyovers, eight rail crossings, and 46 bridge structures, including two bridges across the North Saskatchewan River.

"This is a great opportunity to partner with the province, delivering new, high-quality transportation infrastructure in an accelerated manner under a single P3 contract," said AECOM Chairman and Chief Executive Officer John M. Dionisio. "Together we will develop a project that will provide for a safe transportation network bringing both mobility and further economic growth to the region."

The ring road, once completed, is designed to reduce commute times and traffic congestion in the area.
