

AECOM joint venture team wins U.S. Department of Defense Guam expansion contract

October 14, 2008 at 7:01 AM EDT

Contract value to joint venture up to $100 million over five years

LOS ANGELES--(BUSINESS WIRE)--

AECOM Technology Corporation (NYSE: ACM), a leading provider of professional technical and management support services for government and commercial clients around the world, announced today that Pacific Program-Design Management Services, a joint venture comprised of AECOM and Parsons Corp., has been awarded the program support task-order contract for overall program management and architect-engineering management for the U.S. Department of Defense's Guam expansion effort.

Based upon presently expected levels of activity, the program support task-order contract could be worth up to $100 million to the joint venture over the next five years. The Pacific Program-Design Management Services joint venture leverages the expertise of AECOM; Earth Tech, which AECOM acquired in July; and Parsons. Including its Earth Tech interests, AECOM has a 49-percent interest in the joint venture team.

The services that the joint venture is contracted to provide to the Guam expansion effort include the management and construction of the military's estimated $10-billion construction expansion program on the Pacific island of Guam.
