AECOM Announces Resignation of Robert J. Lowe from its Board of Directors

LOS ANGELES (June 18, 2013) — AECOM Technology Corporation (NYSE: ACM), a leading provider of professional technical and management support services for public and private clients in more than 140 countries around the world, announced that Robert J. Lowe has resigned from AECOM's Board of Directors effective June 12, 2013. Mr. Lowe has served on the AECOM Board of Directors since 1993.

Through its investment fund, AECOM Capital, AECOM expects to enter into a new relationship with Lowe Enterprises, Inc., a leading real estate development and management company founded by Mr. Lowe. AECOM Capital and Lowe Enterprises expect to form a partnership to bring their combined capital and development, asset management, construction and consulting engineering expertise to development projects. In anticipation of this new relationship, Mr. Lowe has decided to resign from the AECOM Board of Directors. AECOM Capital allows AECOM to play a key role in development projects where clients are seeking partners that can provide equity investments along with AECOM's traditional services.

"The AECOM Board has greatly appreciated and benefited from Bob's passion, talent and wisdom in his more than two decades of service to AECOM," said John M. Dionisio, AECOM chairman and chief executive officer. "While we will miss Bob's in-depth knowledge of business operations, strategy and technology, we look forward to the new relationship between AECOM Capital and Lowe Enterprises."
